Dear Dr. Winter,

I saw the article in the latest Time magazine recognizing you for your work in the Christian mission field including your picture. I was struck by the resemblance between you and my father and his two brothers. My father was Robert Paul Winter, son of Paul Winter (my grandfather) whose father was a Presbyterian minister in the Wisconsin area and specifically in Madison. I know my grandfather had several brothers and a sister and I remember meeting an Uncle Adolf and Uncle Otto as a very small child.

Most of our Winter family lives in and around the Chicago area. My wife and I, now that we're retired, live in the Lake Geneva area of Wisconsin. I grew up in a suburb of Chicago and my father and his brothers were born in Chicago growing up in the Austin area, the west side of the city.

Is there possibly a family connection? I know you must be very busy with your outreach programs, however if you have the odd moment, perhaps you could email me at the following address:

Best regards,

Robert G. Winter
